Classical, Medieval and Renaissance Literature 1954

renaissance literature and linguistic creativity interrogates notions of linguistic creativity as presented in english literary texts of the late sixteenth century it considers the reflections of renaissance english writers upon the problem of how linguistic meaning is created in their work the book achieves this consideration by placing its renaissance authors in the context of the dominant conceptualisation of the thought language relationship in the western tradition namely that of introspection in taking this route author james harmer undertakes to provide a comprehensive overview of the notion of introspection from classical times to the renaissance and demonstrates how complex and even strange this notion is often seen to be by thinkers and writers harmer also shows how poetry and literary discourse in general stands at the centre of the conceptual consideration of what linguistic thinking is he then argues through a range of close readings of renaissance texts that writers of the shakespearean period increase the fragility of the notion of introspection in such a way as to make the prospect of any systematic theory of meaning seem extremely remote embracing and exploring the possibility that thinking about meaning can only occur in the context of extreme cognitive and psychological limitation these texts emerge as proponents of a human mind which is remarkably free in its linguistic nature an irresistible mode of life unto itself the final argumentative stratum of the book explores the implications of this approach for understanding the relationship between literary criticism philosophy and other kinds of critical activity texts discussed at length include edmund spenser s the faerie queene and shorter poetry george chapman s ovids banquet of sence shakespeare s titus andronicus and hamlet and john donne s elegies

Renaissance and Reformations *2008-04-15

the automaton in english renaissance literature features original essays exploring the automaton from animated statue to anthropomorphized machine in the poetry prose and drama of england in the 16th and 17th centuries addressing the history and significance of the living machine in early modern literature the collection places literary automata of the period within their larger aesthetic historical philosophical and scientific contexts while no single theory or perspective concribes the volume taken as a whole the collection helps correct an assumption that frequently emerges from a post enlightenment perspective that these animated beings are by definition exemplars of the new science or that they point necessarily to man s triumphant relationship to technology on the contrary automata in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries seem only partly and sporadically to function as embodiments of an emerging mechanistic or materialist worldview renaissance automata were just as likely not to confirm for viewers a hypothesis about the man machine instead these essays show automata were often a source of wonder suggestive of magic proof of the uncannily animating effect of poetry indeed just as likely to unsettle the divide between man and divinity as that between man and matter
